The Acton Volunteer Coordinating Committee met May 13, 2013 and interviewed David Shoemaker for the Historic District Commission.

David is currently an Astrophysicist at MIT. His major relevant skills include problem solving. He lives in the historic district and has had personal involvement with the Historic Commission. It was during that involvement that he got to know members of the Commission and they invited him to apply for membership.

His unpredictable travel schedule may be an issue for him, but he is enthusiastic and feels that he would be able to make most meetings and still contribute if he can't always be at the meetings. He has the support of the Commission Chairperson.

The VCC recommends that his name be forwarded for further consideration.
